

Operationalizing Intersectionality Theory in Research

1. What potential differences can be teased out of your sample population?
 - a. Adopt relevant PPV (use the provided template)
 - Select social categories of identity that are relevant to the broader context of your research
 - b. Adopt PP_v (use the provided template)
 - Tease out differences within each PPV
 - Further reduce PP_v when possible (e.g. within the (dis)ability PPV, can each PP_v be further divided?)
 - Include differences with regional significance (e.g. provincial and national level differences)
2. Is your research team reflective of the diversity in the sampling frame(work)?
3. What organizations exist that could become partners in the research and promote community engagement? Does your research align with work already being done by these organizations?
4. Do members of the research team have existing relationships with communities that are in the sampling framework and historically underrepresented?
 - How can those relationships be leveraged?
 - How can those relationships be strengthened?
 - How can new relationships be created by doing research in collaboration with community stakeholder partners?
